Art Unit: 1652

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35

U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-4, 8, 11-13, drawn to a nucleic acid, a host cell, a method of making a protein by using the host cell and a method of detecting the presence of the nucleic acid by using a probe or primer, classified in class 435, subclass 195, 252.3, 6 and class 536, subclass 23.2.
- II. Claims 5-6, 9-10, 14-15, drawn to a polypeptide, a method of detecting the polypeptide, a kit, a method for identifying a compound that binds the polypeptide and a method of modulating the activity of the polypeptide, classified in class 435, subclass 195, 18.
- III. Claim 7, drawn to an antibody, classified in class 530, subclass 397.9.
- IV. Claims 16-18, drawn to a method of inhibiting aberrant activity of an 80091-expressing cell, classified in class 435, subclass 375.
- V. Claims 19-20, drawn to a method of treating a disorder comprising administering a compound that modulates the activity or expression of the nucleic acid, classified in class 424 or 514, numerous subclasses depending upon the compound used.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because:

The products of groups I-III are completely different chemical compounds and are patentably distinct.

Inventions II and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the two methods of group II or the method of group V.

Inventions II and V are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the two methods of group II or the method of group IV.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification and recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
